Women's basketball seeks 48-team tournament field

The Division I Women's Basketball Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that the field for the Division I Women's Basketball Championship be increased from 40 to 48 teams for 1988 and that the four geographical regions be realigned, effective with the 1988-89 season.

The committee met July 5-9 in Hot Springs, Virginia.

The purpose of the realignment is to create a better distribution of strength and numbers in each region and to provide greater flexibility in the designation of tournament sites.

The Sun Belt Conference will be realigned from the East to the Midwest region, the Big Ten Conference from the Midwest to the Midwest region and the Southwestern Athletic Conference from the Midwest to the West region.

All members of the Southern Conference will be placed in the

Officer, Council nominations open

The NCAA Nominating Committee is accepting nominations for Division III vice-president and 13 Council positions (12 with term expirations of January 1988 and one who is retiring).

Five of the 13 Council members whose terms expire are eligible for reelection (three in Division I and two in Division II). Five Division I members are not eligible for reelection; one Division II member cannot be reelected. Also, in Division III, two members must be replaced.

The deadline for submitting nominations is September 10. Nominations may be sent to John E. Thomas, Chancellor, Appalachian

State University, Boone, North Carolina 28608 (chair of the Nominating Committee) or to any member of the committee. Nominations also should be sent directly to Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, at the NCAA national office (P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201).

A brief paragraph describing the qualifications of the candidates should accompany the nomination form that appears in this issue on page 18. The Nominating Committee has emphasized that all nominations should be submitted in written form.

In Division I, those eligible for reelection are B. J. Skelton, Clemson University; Charles Whitcomb, San Jose State University; the individual named by the Council to replace Jack V. Doland until the January 1988 Convention, representing Division I-AA West, and the individual to replace Eugene F. Corrigan until the January 1988 Convention, representing Division I-A north independents.

Division I members not eligible for reelection are Don J. DiJulia, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference; Mikki Flowers, Old Dominion University; David L. Maggard, University of California, Berkeley, and Vernon M. Smith, University of See Officer, page 13

Cardinal rules the roost again

For the second straight year, Stanford University is the unofficial NCAA champion of champions.

In winning four team titles (Division I men's swimming, baseball and women's tennis, and the National Collegiate Water Polo Championship), the Cardinal also becomes only the fourth intercollegiate athletics program to win 30 or more NCAA team titles. Stanford joins Southern Cal, UCLA and Oklahoma State in that elite group.

Several other intercollegiate programs made headlines during the 1986-87 championships season—some for continuing streaks, others for ending streaks, and still others for taking both men's and women's crowns in the same sport.

Most notable among the continuing streaks is Hobart's string of eight consecutive Division III men's lacrosse victories. With its 9-5 victory over Ohio Wesleyan for the 1987 title, the Statesmen and coach Dave Urlick moved past UCLA's men's basketball program and legendary coach John Wooden, who won consecutive Division I crowns from 1967 through 1973. Hobart remains the only champion in the history of the Association's Division III lacrosse play-offs.

Fund for insurance payments sought

The Division I Men's Basketball Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that the NCAA use a portion of its net receipts from the men's basketball championship to pay the premium for catastrophic insurance coverage for Division I student-athletes participating in all NCAA championships.

The committee, which met July 5-9 in Hot Springs, Virginia, expanded a recommendation made in May that the NCAA use gross receipts from the men's basketball championship to pay premiums for student-athletes participating in Division I Men's and Women's Basketball Championships.

The committee also reaffirmed its other recommendations regarding distribution of receipts from the men's basketball championship. These include a scholarship-endowment fund for Division I student-athletes who have exhausted their eligibility but wish to return to school to complete their degrees; grants to men's automatic-qualifying conferences to be used for compliance/enforcement programs, enhancement of officiating and drug education; grants to automatic-qualifying conferences in the Division I Women's Basketball Championship for similar purposes; a nonparticipation fee for each Division I institution that does not participate in the men's basketball championship, and grants to the Youth Education through Sports clinics and the national certification and officiating program for men's basketball.

If the NCAA pays all premiums for Division I, the premiums paid by Divisions II and III would be reduced.

In other actions, the committee voted to recommend that separate officiating crews be preassigned to all regional semifinals and finals.

Special Convention sets record for registration

A total of 1,135 delegates, visitors and media representatives attended the Association's sixth special Convention June 29-30 in Dallas, a record registration for a special NCAA Convention.

That number surpassed the 972 registered for the third special Convention in January 1976.

Included in the total were 931 delegates from 463 member institutions, 73 representing 51 member conferences, 17 from affiliated members, one corresponding member, six visitors and 107 news media representatives.

Including both institutions and conferences, all 114 Division I-AA members were in attendance, as well as 94 of 97 Division I-AA members and 106 of 133 Division I-AAA members. That meant a total of 314 of the 344 Division I members, or 91.3 percent, registered for the Convention.

In Division II, 124 of 208 members (59.6 percent) attended. The Division III figure was only 76 of 344, for 22.1 percent.

Of the Association's 896 active and conference members, 514 were in Dallas (60.4 percent). Of the 866 eligible voters, 510 (58.9 percent) were represented.

I-AAA football division would help schools, sport

The following is an address presented by James Jarrett, athletics director at Old Dominion University, concerning the establishment of an NCAA Division I-AAA for football. Representatives of more than 50 institutions heard Jarrett's talk during the NCAA special Convention and a large majority agreed to support the continued development of the concept.

You may wonder why the director of athletics at Old Dominion University, a I-AAA nonfootball playing institution, is talking about restructuring NCAA Division I to create a third football division.

Old Dominion has been interested in beginning football for several years. The university governing board authorized a study of football options and opportunities available to Old Dominion. President Joseph M. Marchello and I have thoroughly investigated the options of I-A, I-AA, II and III. We hired a consultant and talked with numerous presidents and athletics directors.

James Jarrett

Our analysis of football options quickly ruled out Division I-A as financially unrealistic for us. Thus, we looked more closely at I-AA, II and III. Division I universities playing Division III football gave us some interesting comments and observations:

1. A Division I institution playing football at the Division II or III level cannot include football as one of its countable sports.

2. Division I institutions are "a fish out of water" in Division III football.

3. Many Division III institutions are reluctant to schedule a university that has the remainder of its program in Division I.

4. The lack of fan identification with a team in Division III inhibits marketing efforts and creates pressure "to move up in division."

5. Except for those grandfathered in, there is no championship opportunity for Division I institutions playing in Division III football.

Division II concerns included scheduling, budget and marketing. In addition, the gap in grant-in-aid limitations rules out the possibility of scheduling both Divisions I-AA and III teams.

A number of I-AA universities told us that they are losing considerable money with I-AA football. Comments such as the following are representative of our findings:

"You would be out of your mind to start football at I-AA."

"If we do not find an answer in the next two years, we will be forced to pull the plug on football."

"Since the television money disappeared, Division I-AA is not economically feasible."

"The national championship format is not the positive force we anticipated."

Indeed, discussions confirmed our own analysis that I-AA football would lose several hundred thousand dollars a year at Old Dominion.

Realizing the many benefits that football can bring to the campus, we continued to review our options. After discussions with Thomas J. Frericks, director of athletics at the University of Dayton (Division III football), and O. Dean Ehlers, athletics director at James Madison University (Division I-AA football), the idea of I-AAA emerged as an alternative to address problems many Division I universities are having playing football at levels other than I-A.

A survey of 112 universities in this category led to today's meeting.

We are here because of our interest in cost containment and organi-

Letters to the Editor

What's wrong with paying players?

To the Editor:

What does the general public have against paying collegiate revenue-producing athletes? Isn't our nation's economic system based on capitalism and a free-market economy? To force college athletes to play for no pay is not only anticapitalistic, but it also is against what this country is supposed to stand for, isn't it?

NCAA member schools are usually taxpayer-supported; and even though many collegiate athletics departments profess to be financially independent from the rest of the university, they still rely on the university for eligible student-athletes and earn money from student activity fees paid by the student body. As part of the universities, they are taxpayer-supported. So, how can a taxpayer-supported school flagrantly ignore the freedom-of-speech laws of our Constitution by refusing to let athletes have any say in the NCAA's rules?

No athlete has ever been allowed to vote on even one NCAA rule. This probably makes all of the NCAA's 411 pages of rules totally illegal, doesn't it?

Exactly who is the cheater in collegiate athletics, the player who takes money from an alumnus (entirely legal in a capitalistic system), or the coach who tries to deny this right through the intimidation of rule-making?

What gives the NCAA the legal right to now tell the nation in general that they can't contact high school prospects themselves? Isn't taking away freedom of speech from 19-year-olds enough without having to try to boss around the whole country?

Maybe it's time to start all over

To the Editor:

Women's athletics are in sad shape if Donna Lopiano's statement, "I tell my coaches if you're not top 10, you're gone," is endorsed by other Division I athletics directors.

An irresponsible affirmation such as this coming from the women's athletics director at the University of Texas, Austin, makes one wonder about the future of intercollegiate athletics.

Perhaps the time has come to burn down the athletics house and start anew.

Proposition 48 unfair to women

To the Editor:

Proposition 48—the NCAA membership's adoption of a more restrictive minimum SAT score for the granting of athletics eligibility—was, in theory, an assurance that scholarships would not be granted to those athletes who lacked the academic ability to perform in the classroom. In reality, however, it has discriminated against women. Numerous deserving

Despite media reports, special Convention not a washout

By John Roth
Duke Dialogue

Contrary to most published analyses, the special NCAA Convention was not a washout, according to Duke University Director of Athletics Tom Butters.

The Convention was called by the NCAA's Presidents Commission in part to enact a series of nationwide cost-cutting measures within intercollegiate athletics. But delegates at the Convention defeated or deferred for study virtually all of the key cost-cutting proposals, leading to criticism of the Commission.

"I wasn't surprised by the results," Butters said following the two-day gathering in Dallas. "It's going to be interpreted that it was a slap in the face to the Presidents Commission, but that would be an erroneous assumption. It was very worthwhile. Dialogue was begun, and the seriousness of key issues is clear. Although no particular legislation came forth at this meeting, that to me is almost incidental."

The Presidents Commission started an 18-month national forum to examine the proper role of intercollegiate athletics in higher education. The forum began at the special Convention and, Butters said, could eventually determine the direction of future cost-cutting moves within the NCAA.

"I think it would have been inappropriate to pass legislation prior to the 18-month study, only to find out at the conclusion of the study that it should be changed," Butters said. "In the long run, we've acted less precipitously. When legislation is established, it will be sound legislation based upon facts."

The key proposals under consideration at the Convention included across-the-board reductions of scholarship limits in most men's and women's sports, a reduction in the number of assistant coaches allowed in football, and limitations on playing and practice seasons.

Butters said Duke supported some of the cost-cutting measures, but he added that he wasn't disappointed to see them defeated, amended or referred for future study.

"Obviously, cost-cutting is im-tant," he said. "But that isn't to say costs should be cut at the expense of the student-athletes through the reduction of scholarships. There are many areas in intercollegiate athletics where reductions can take place. Eighteen months from now, they (the presidents) will have a better idea what policies to implement, and we (athletics administrators) will have a better idea as to how such policy might be handled."

zational alternatives for Division I universities that participate in football other than at the I-A level.

Our institutions are striving to find an economically feasible manner in which to present an intercollegiate football program, emphasizing the maximum benefits for the student-athletes. We also are committed to avoiding integrity problems that are compounded by the pressure to win in order to generate revenue.

The concept currently known as NCAA I-AAA football would be structured as to the following criteria:

1. Provide cost-containment alternatives for an increasingly expensive sport;
2. Provide an alternative that would be a countable sport to meet the NCAA Division I minimum requirement for number of sports, and

3. Provide opportunities for marketable competition between universities committed to reasonable cost-containment guidelines.

Our goal is to determine how many institutions are interested in the continued development of the I-AAA football concept and to develop a strategy and timetable for developing and advocating the NCAA legislation necessary to establish a football Division I-AAA.

To begin cost-containment discussions, we propose a set of basic guidelines. These guidelines are not carved in stone and are presented as a starting point for our discussion.

1. Number of games—For institutions that desire postseason participation in play-off or bowl games, the game limit would be 10. Consideration should be given to 11 games for institutions and conferences that elect not to participate in play-off or postseason bowl games.

2. No spring practice Spring practice would be eliminated from I-AAA football.

3. Coaching-staff limitations—Concern has been expressed with the part-time coach concept, but there is little likelihood of institutions abusing the part-time coaching concept at the I-AAA level. With this in mind, as well as the need to utilize the part-time coaching expertise that is available, it is recommended that coaching staff limitations be: a. Up to four full-time coaches, and b. A combination of four part-time, volunteer and/or graduate assistant coaches. Obviously, recruiting guidelines need to be developed to include a limit on the number of coaches allowed to recruit.

4. Financial aid based upon need—This concept offers the greatest potential for cost-containment and must be carefully reviewed.

Obviously, the above guidelines, as well as factors such as recruiting and visitation limitations, must be refined during the next few months.

As we studied football opportunities in I-AA, II, and III, it seemed clear to me that many institutions are seeking an alternative to the current options.

In order to provide this opportunity, we must be willing to be creative and flexible. We need to take major steps toward cost-containment and not simply water down the current mini-I-A approach. Educational needs, institutional needs, those of student-athletes and the sport of football all are potential benefactors of the I-AAA concept.

A new division can provide Division I institutions that play Divisions II and III football the opportunity to play in Division I at an affordable level as a countable sport. The new division would permit those I-AA institutions with financial problems to balance the budget without disenfranchising those I-AA institutions that are pleased with their division as it exists today.

young women have been rejected by colleges, lost scholarships and playing opportunities because they did not achieve a minimum SAT score of 700.

Why is such a score that might be fair for men not fair for women? Because while women, on average, score nearly 60 points lower than men on the SATs, documentation for nearly 20 years shows that these same women outperform their male counterparts in college. Researchers, test-makers and concerned others report that SAT scores continually fail to predict female class performance. It is thus obvious that men and women perform differently both on the SATs and in the college classroom.

These differences must be taken into account in the setting of minimum SAT scores for women. How and why SAT test questions discriminate against women must be studied. In the meantime, however, qualified women must not be denied their just opportunities. The NCAA membership must lower the required minimum score for females so that it will be more commensurate with a male score of 700. A minimum female score of 650—which takes into account the nearly 60-point difference between male and female scores and subsequent achievement—seems fair.

Appropriate consideration of the differences between the testing and the achievement of men and women would not be lowering the high standards the NCAA membership has agreed upon, nor would it grant scholarships to students who lacked the academic ability to perform in the classroom. What it would do would be to right the wrong of females being unjustly selected out by an unsuitable standard.

Athletes don't have to be students

To the Editor:

Big-time athletics is obviously a way of life and a mighty good living for those gifted and fortunate enough to make the big time. Again, it is apparent that the professional leagues need the players just as the players need the professional leagues for the big bucks.

Where do the players get the training and exposure to prepare them for the big chance? The NFL and NBA rely almost exclusively on college athletics programs to sustain their minor-league systems. Big-league baseball, on a much smaller level, and the NHL, in a very limited sense, do likewise.

The point of this is that the players and the leagues have their showcase provided for them under the guise of higher education.

In many cases, however, this is not true. It is necessary to create a facade to get many of the athletes into higher education and another series of facades to keep them "eligible."

Respect for integrity and truth are important strands in the fabric of society, and the facades created to maintain big-time collegiate athletics competition make a joke of integrity and truth, time and again.

Clubs should be created at each university for the purpose of training young people in athletics and community service. These clubs should be supported totally by revenue from the professional leagues (like any farm system) and additional revenue from the university athletics proceeds.

The athletes in these clubs would not necessarily be students, but they are near a higher education atmosphere and may find that they would like to become a student if they can meet the requirements of nonathlete students. Very few of the club athletes will make the pros, but part of the recruitment contract would stipulate that after their playing time is completed, they would have four years of education time paid for by the pros if they honestly qualify academically and pass the required courses as a student.

Of course, there will be some athletes who are capable and desirous of being a genuine student-athlete and can pass the entrance examinations and maintain legitimate eligibility. More power to them, and they would certainly receive the same monetary support as the club athletes.

There will be mistakes, and young men and women will make incoherent choices and have to reverse themselves, but certainly the great values of respect for integrity and truth will not be flouted nearly as much as they currently are.

The NCAA would be very capable of setting up an operational framework for the clubs and would certainly be able to administer them within specified guidelines. I'm sure many of the recruiting abuses would still be problems, but the academic area would be aboveboard and the enforcement parameters would be narrowed and possibly more easily monitored.

One final thought—athletics ability is a gift not all people have. There is nothing that says a person with the gift of athletics ability has to have academic ability and/or interest. Remember, it is not necessary to pass football 101, basketball 134a, baseball 116, etc., to be awarded a degree in education, business, physics, math, music and so on.

Student-athlete's welfare comes first

To the Editor:

As executive director of the American Football Coaches Association, I would like to make a point on behalf of our coaches, and it is something about which they have strong convictions.

As the recent special Convention in Dallas was drawing to a close, a number of headlines appeared across the country that inferred that the coaching fraternity and college presidents were in direct confrontation on several issues and that there were winners and losers in regard to the passage of legislation. I feel many in the news media misrepresented the situation, although I know they reported the facts as they saw them.

It is my view, and many AFCA members hold the same view, that in pursuing NCAA matters—which includes the legislative process—a "we vs. they" syndrome should never be allowed to develop among those who hold opposing viewpoints. The bottom line is the welfare of the student-athlete. The end result of the yeas and nays is the effect the legislation will have on the student-athlete and whether his or her best interests have been properly addressed.

While there may be differences of opinion between the various representatives of institutions—coaches, athletics directors, faculty athletics representatives and presidents—about the best way to achieve certain ends, the only effective way to come to a solution is to communicate and work hand in hand with each other.

That's the manner in which the AFCA worked in the months preceding the June Convention. We asked our head coaches to go to their administrators on campus and let them know—from their perspective—how proposed legislation would affect the sport and the coaching profession. We got our point across by working within the system; and at the same time, progress was made by all parties involved in resolving issues in several areas.

I want to set the record straight. Coaches and presidents never win or Previously, crews had been preassigned to semifinal games only, and crews for the finals had been drawn from that pool. Under the new recommendation, all officials working a regional game, whether semifinal or final, will have the opportunity to be selected to work at the Final Four.

The committee heard a presentation by Louisville coach Denny Crum concerning the process for selection of at-large teams to the men's basketball championship. Crum's team, the 1986 champion, was not selected to participate in the 1987 tournament.

Crum suggested that selections be made strictly by a computer program. The criteria used would be strength of schedule, opponents' strength of schedule, sites of games (for both the team under consideration and its opponents) and margin of victory. The committee would have the flexibility to take into account extenuating circumstances such as a team losing a top player to injury for a significant period of time.

The committee reaffirmed that the computer program should be used only as an advisory tool in the selection process. The current program does include strength of schedule of the team under consideration and of its opponents and their opponents. The computer printout provides information about scores and sites, but these items are not factored into the rankings.

The committee will recommend 30 conferences for automatic qualification to the 1988 men's championship. They are: the Association of Mid-Central Universities, Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic-10 Conference, Big East Conference, Big Eight Conference, Big Sky Conference, Big Ten Conference, Colonial Athletic Association, East Coast Conference, Eastern College Athletic Conference Metro and North Atlantic, Ivy League, Metro Conference, Metro Atlantic Conference, Mid-American Conference, Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, Midwestern Collegiate Conference, Missouri Valley Conference, Ohio Valley Conference, Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Pacific-10 Conference, Southeastern Conference, Southern Conference, Southland Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference, Southwestern Athletic Conference, Sun Belt Conference, Trans America Athletic Conference, West Coast Athletic Conference, and Western Athletic Conference.

The American South Athletic Conference's request for a waiver of the automatic-qualification criteria was denied.

The committee also will recommend that members of the officials evaluation committee and officials receive the same per diem as NCAA committee members. This will be an increase in per diem for officials. Members of the officials evaluation committee had not received any compensation.

The board of directors of the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) expressed its preference for large arenas for the Final Four and neutral courts for all regional competition. The board also expressed a desire for neutral courts for all rounds of the championship.

The committee reaffirmed its commitment to neutral sites for regional competition.

three-year-old committee of chief executive officers at NCAA institutions chaired by University of Maryland, College Park, Chancellor John B. Slaughter. It has been credited with bringing in several reforms in intercollegiate athletics, including support for Proposition 48, which requires minimal academic standards for freshman eligibility, and "death penalty" probation, which eliminates from competition schools that have been repeat offenders against NCAA regulations.

"I can't speak for the presidents," Butters said, "but I think they would agree that what they are good at is establishing tone and policy and procedure, and that perhaps that is as far as they want to go. They are not as astute, self-admittedly, at deciding if we should go from 15 to 14 scholarships in a sport.

"So it seems to me, the next 18 months are going to provide the facts by which presidential policy will be established. Following that, it would be my perception that the presidents would turn over to the faculty representatives, the directors of athletics and the coaches the best means by which those thoughts could be enhanced by legislation.

"During this forum, committees will look at every critical issue. From the results of surveys, studies and some empirical knowledge, they will come to agreement on parameters that should then be followed.

"I would anticipate they would then turn that over to the day-to-day operators of athletics to establish legislation to fit their framework," Butters said.

"Their findings ask that specific legislation be considered that would be consistent with the information that had been assembled. It is a time-consuming process but one that should, with certainty, address the critical issues that confront intercollegiate athletics today," Butters said.

Fingers pointed in wrong direction

To the Editor:

It is with great amusement that I read accounts of the problems of intercollegiate athletics placed at the doorstep of "the system"—boosters, finances, agents, evil athletes, inadequate supervision and "overemphasis," among other things. One hears little of the self-indulgent, evil, incompetent and shallow people whom one finds managing institutions of higher learning and coaching and directing collegiate athletics programs around the country.

We focus, very superficially, on the athletes themselves, the values of sport, competition, and the values inherent in the pursuit of excellence, whether it be in music, art, drama, or sport. From Ira Michael Heyman, chancellor of the prestigious Berkeley campus of the University of California, we are given a blueprint for mediocrity in athletics. There is a place within the NCAA for those with Dr. Heyman's philosophy—it's called Division III. One wonders why Dr. Heyman lacks the courage to lead his own institution down that path? Why must he attempt to drag the rest of us with him? Could it be that the current "cost-cutting" initiative is a "red herring"?

Was there anything more absurd than a cost-cutting Convention being held at the Loews Anatole in Dallas, Texas? Al McGuire was right—if we really want to learn about real life and cut costs at the same time, the only place to meet is the south Bronx.

In many ways, the tip of the iceberg that represents our problems in athletics may be symbolized by cost-cutting meetings at the Anatole, the perks enjoyed by many university-level CEOs and interest-free loans made by NCAA officials to themselves, while giving lip service to the pursuit of excellence and ignoring the real financial needs of student-athletes.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancies must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the national office no later than August 7.

Men's and Women's Track and Field: Replacement for Charlene Cline, resigned from Coe College to accept a position at a Division II institution. Appointee must be a Division III representative of women's track. Also, the July 8 issue of The NCAA News indicated that the replacement for Mike Sheley, resigned from the University of Georgia, must be an administrator. In the meantime, another committee member has become an administrator. Accordingly, it is not necessary to replace Sheley with an administrator. The appointee must be a woman, representing Division I women's track. The deadline for nominations for this position, therefore, has been changed to August 7, 1987.

Wrestling: Replacement for Bob Carlson, formerly at Utah State University, who has accepted a position at the same institution (Clarion University) as the chair of the committee, Robert G. Bubb. Appointee must be a Division I representative.

Committee Changes

Appointments are effective immediately unless otherwise noted.

Council: Jerry Hughes, Central Missouri State University, appointed to replace Ade L. Sponberg as a Division II member.

Presidents Commission: Chase N. Peterson, University of Utah, selected to replace Jeffrey R. Holland (Division I). William E. Tucker, Texas Christian University, selected to replace Richard L. Van Horn (Division I).

Division I Women's Basketball: Judith R. Holland, University of California, Los Angeles, appointed to replace Pamela L. Strathairn, deceased.

Men's and Women's Skiing: Margaret F. Strait, St. Lawrence University, appointed to replace Gail A. Bigglestone, University of New Hampshire, resigned from the committee.

Men's and Women's Swimming: Stanley B. Sheriff, University of Hawaii, resigned from the committee. A replacement will not be appointed in order to reduce the size of the committee as specified by new legislation.

Men's and Women's Track and Field: Alfreda Goff, Virginia Commonwealth University instead of the University of Pittsburgh, effective August 3, 1987.

Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports: Malcolm C. McInnis Jr., University of Tennessee, Knoxville, appointed to replace Jeffrey O'Connell, University of Virginia, resigned from the committee.

Postgraduate Scholarship: Richard A. Young, Florida International University instead of Washington State University, effective July 15, 1987.

Professional Sports Liaison: Lew Perkins, Wichita State University, moved to the University of Maryland, College Park, which is in the same conference as another committee member's institution. Perkins cannot continue to serve because of the playing-conference rule. He will not be replaced in order to reduce the size of the committee as specified in the bylaws.

Nominating Committee: Daniel G. Gibbens, University of Oklahoma, appointed to replace John P. Mahlstede, who is retiring from Iowa State University.

Women's Committee on Committees: Marnie W. Swift, University of Toledo, appointed to replace Diane Lindstrom, resigned from the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Committee suggests ban on steroids include athletes' training seasons

The Special Postseason Drug-Testing Committee continues to wage war on the use of anabolic steroids.

The committee, meeting in Montreal July 16-17, voted to recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee possible courses of action to eliminate steroid use during the training season (i.e., January to May 15 for the sport of football).

The drug-testing committee expressed alarm over findings by member institutions of continued steroid use during periods not subject to NCAA testing.

In seeking to change the current pattern of the use of short-lived steroids, the committee suggested that the portion of Bylaw 5-2-(a) stipulating ineligibility for use of banned substances "in preparation for" an NCAA championship or certified postseason football contest be interpreted to include that training period. If this interpretation is not possible, the committee would support new legislation for testing during the period.

In other business, the committee recommended that the Executive Committee continue to advocate team sanctions for use of banned substances by student-athletes, as recommended at its December meeting.

On the issue of distribution of receipts in cases of team ineligibility, the committee suggested that a positive test by a student-athlete affect only institutional receipts from the session of competition at which the positive result was registered. Distribution of receipts in cases of team ineligibility would be administered according to the following guidelines: (1) conference shares of receipts would not be affected; (2) the institution with a positive drug test would receive 50 percent of earned receipts from the championship session, thus providing revenue in an equitable manner to both conferences and independent institutions; (3) if an institution allowed a known ineligible student-athlete to participate, 90 percent of institutional receipts would be withheld under Executive Regulation 1-3-(j).

The committee also recommended that the Executive Committee consider revising all team ineligibility to be consistent with those guidelines.

In other action, the Special Postseason Drug-Testing Committee recommended the testing of officials at championship events, with such testing be conducted in a manner consistent with the testing of student-athletes (at the contest's conclusion and with analysis by NCAA-approved laboratories).

In a related matter, legal counsel has recommended to the committee that testing of coaches not be implemented until the NCAA has strong and convincing evidence of the need for such testing and has provided lengthy advance notice.

The committee again addressed the use of sympathomimetic amines and recommended the following addition as Section 3.5 of the drug-testing protocol:

"The use of a banned substance from the sympathomimetic amine category (some of which are over-the-counter cold and diet medications) must be declared by the student-athlete on the Student-Athlete Signature Form at the time of col-

'Exploitation index' proposed as aid to athletes' education

A university whose student-athletes have a poor graduation rate could be pressured into improving that situation if the graduation rates were made public, a Rutgers University, New Brunswick, professor contends.

Clement Cottingham, professor of political science at Rutgers, told the annual meeting of the NAACP that he proposes that student-athletes' graduation rates serve as an "exploitation index."

"A low graduation rate indicates that students are serving some function other than the education function that the university is publicly committed to do," Cottingham was quoted in The Chronicle of Higher Education.

Bad publicity because of a poor graduation rate, Cottingham says, could substantially affect an institution's standing with the public and state legislature.

Cottingham said his "exploitation index" would insure that a university is committed to educating all of its students. He said the problem of exploitation was particularly acute with black athletes.

During its meeting, the NAACP established a sports advisory committee to study issues in athletics as they relate to minorities. Members are Arthur Ashe, Bob Cousy, Bob Lanier, Harry Edwards and Howard Cosell.

$1 million performance bond suggested for sports agents

A sports agent has proposed that all agents accredited by the National Football League Players Association post a $1 million performance bond that would be forfeited if the agent is caught violating NCAA regulations.

Jim Abernethy, the sports agent, suggested that any agents found guilty of illegal practices also be lection. A decision on eligibility will be made based on declaration consistent with concentration levels determined by laboratory analysis and other data."

In other action, the committee:

- Emphasized to sports committees that testing is not done based on either parity or the relative importance of championship events but on concern over the use of drugs.

- Recommended the development of a strong policy banning tobacco and alcohol products from advertising for championship events. The committee cited evidence of health concerns over such substances and expressed the desire for further information, with the possibility of banning their use in the future.

- Resolved to formulate a reciprocal agreement with the U.S. Olympic Committee to share aggregate data on testing, while maintaining the confidentiality of more specific results.

- Reviewed plans for a seminar for team physicians on the Association's drug-testing program, including data on patterns of medication use by student-athletes in 1986-87.

- Reviewed facilities and testing procedures at the INRS-Sante laboratory in Montreal, one of three laboratories certified for NCAA testing, and affirmed its belief in the excellence of the staff and equipment and the exemplary manner in which NCAA specimens are analyzed.

Committee to seek at-large fencing berths

The NCAA Women's Fencing Committee has voted to recommend to the Association's Executive Committee an increase in the number of individual at-large selections and the addition of an at-large team berth to the championships, effective in 1988.

If the recommendation is approved, the West, Northeast and Mid-Atlantic/South regions each would lose an individual bid to expand the number of at-large selections from one to four. The West also would lose one automatic team berth in order to add the at-large team to the field.

The committee also voted to recommend a new format for the individual tournament, with qualifying pools feeding a match plan featuring direct-elimination and repechage or secondary brackets. Last year's championship saw eight fencers eliminated early to form a single-seed bracket.

The 1988 championships will be held March 21-23 at Princeton University.

discredited by the NFLPA for one year, the Associated Press reported.

"The only way the sports agency business will be cleaned up is if it's done by the agents themselves," said Abernethy, of Atlanta.

"We can't stick our heads in the sand and pretend that no problem exists. Our business has a terrible reputation."

Abernethy said he hoped the $1 million bond would help "weed out the fly-by-night agents who work out of a phone booth and are only interested in quick cash."

"The serious agents are businessmen who can afford to buy the bond but are good enough businessmen that they won't risk breaking the rules, losing their money and accreditation by the NFLPA," he said.

Early signings widespread, lawyer says

The lawyer for suspended Ohio State University wide receiver Cris Carter says at least half of the top college football players take money and said it was "amazing" that even that many players followed NCAA rules.

"It's not so much the players receiving the money as much as it is the people who are willing to pay them the money," said Robert Berry, a Boston College law professor who represents Carter. "The people who do this are very often the type of people you don't want representing you."

"So the good agents, who try to play it square, they are at a competitive disadvantage. I guess in a way, it's amazing how many players are straight."

Berry added, "I think of your top players, a good 50 percent have received some type of payments."

Carter, the leading all-time receiver at Ohio State, has been declared permanently ineligible by Ohio State athletics director Richard M. Bay. Carter admitted to Bay that he had signed a contract and had received a $5,000 promissory note May 1, 1986, and had received $150 monthly payments from Lloyd Bloom of World Sports & Entertainment, Inc., the Associated Press reported.

Berry said the blame for situations such as Carter's must rest ultimately with the athletes. But he said the agents are the instigators.

"What is really amazing is that the story did come out this time," said Berry, who has served as a consultant with several professional teams and colleges over the last 15 years. "The reason is because of the notoriety and the U.S. attorney getting involved."

"If they had not, I'm not sure much would be revealed, except for an occasional circumstance."

He added, "The NCAA would have to have tremendous investigative powers to uncover most of what goes on."

Later, Ohio State coach Earle Bruce called for legislation to register agents and stringent requirements that they adhere to NCAA and state guidelines.

Everything your athletic department should know. With no waiting.

It's the only one of its kind. An online information system loaded with vital information your university, your athletic department, your coaching staffs can access and instantly get anytime they want. Information that's constantly updated, so you'll always have the latest facts to work with. All of this is available from Dialcom, an NCAA corporate sponsor and the leader in worldwide electronic messaging services, on the NCAA Communication Network.

Think of the advantages when you have this information and these capabilities at your fingertips:

- Complete, comprehensive, current stats for members in the sports of football and both men's and women's basketball—Team Stats. Player Stats. Season Stats. You name it.

- Interpretations of NCAA legislation as well as discussions on current issues of interest to the Association's members.

- Access to national newspapers and magazine articles. Access to all major sports polls. Even access to reservation services for transportation and hotels.

Definitive guidelines prepared for baseball crowd control

The committee also recommended a modification of regional play in Division I, allowing a fifth day of competition in six-team tournaments. This would allow the host institution optimum scheduling and would benefit sites without lighting.

All action on championships conduct is subject to the approval of the Executive Committee.

A report on rules changes made at the committee meeting will be included in the next issue of The NCAA News.

Legislative Assistance

1987 Column No. 27

Celebrity sports activities

The Divisions I and II subcommittees of the NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee have reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 3-3-(k)-(3) permitting the participation of an individual student-athlete in local celebrity sports activities conducted for the purpose of raising funds for a charitable organization (as long as no more than two student-athletes from any one sport are participating in such activities, and the students do not miss class as a result of their participation) and agreed that the provisions of Bylaw 3-3-(k)-(3) apply to the participation of student-athletes in fund-raising sports activities for charitable organizations held during the summer months, as well as those events conducted during the academic year.

Member institutions are reminded that the provisions of NCAA Constitution 3-9-(b) would preclude a basketball student-athlete from participating in local celebrity basketball team activities; however, basketball student-athletes could participate per Bylaw 3-3-(k)-(3) in local celebrity activities involving other sports.

Bylaw 1-2-(b)—leadership tutorial programs

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee has approved the following criteria per Bylaw 1-2-(b) regarding the involvement of a member institution's student-athletes or athletics representatives in leadership tutorial programs (and any similar educational programs) designed in part to improve the probability of prospective student-athletes qualifying academically to receive athletically related grants-in-aid from member institutions:

1. A member institution may not serve as a sponsor or cosponsor of the program.
2. No member of an institution's coaching staff may participate in the program.
3. No representative of an institution's athletics interests or enrolled student-athletes may be involved in the selection of the participants in the program; however, both representatives and student-athletes may serve as bona fide tutors or instructors in the program, provided their employment is determined through a legitimate, nonpartisan selection process.
4. At no time may student-athletes or athletics representatives attempt to recruit any prospective student-athlete in the program.
5. The program must be open to athletes and nonathletes alike.
6. The program must be conducted within 30 miles of the institution's campus or the home town of the involved student-athlete or athletics representative.

Drug-education programs

Member institutions are reminded that student-athletes are permitted to make educational presentations under the following conditions to students at elementary and secondary schools regarding the need to avoid the use of illegal drugs:

1. The involvement of student-athletes from member institutions is solely for the purpose of making presentations regarding drug abuse and not related in any way to recruiting activities.
2. Any financial assistance provided by member institutions to student-athletes involved in these activities would be limited to the actual and necessary expenses incurred by the student-athletes.
3. A member institution may provide expenses for such activities only if they take place within the 30-mile radius of the institution's main campus.

Officer

Toledo (retiring).

Four of the Division I representatives elected or reelected must be from Division I-A conferences (the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Mid-American Conference, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, the Pacific-10 Conference). One of those elected or reelected must represent Division I-AA West. One must represent I-A north independents. Two must represent Division I-AAA. One must be a woman, and one must be a chief executive officer. One must be from Region 1 (Districts 1 and 2); one must be from Region 3 (District 4 and 5), and one must be from Region 4 (Districts 6, 7 and 8).

Eligible for reelection in Division II are Karen L. Miller, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona, and Jerry M. Hughes, Central Missouri State University.

The Division II representative not eligible for reelection is Richard B. Yoder, West Chester University of Pennsylvania.

One of the Division II representatives elected or reelected must be a woman.

Division III representatives not eligible for reelection are Robert W. Hatch, Bates College, and Russell J. Poel, North Central College.

One of the Division III representatives elected or reelected must be from Region 1.

The Division III vice-president must be selected from among the Division III Council members.

Members of the 1988 NCAA Nominating Committee from Division I are Edward Leland, Dartmouth College; Kathleen M. Wear-McNally, La Salle University; John E. Thomas, Appalachian State University, chair; Nelson E. Townsend, Florida A&M University; Richard M. Bay, Ohio State University; Daniel G. Gibbons, University of Oklahoma; Michael T. Johnson, University of Houston, and Barbara B. Hollmann, University of Montana.

Division II members are Francis W. Poisson, University of Bridgeport; Sandra T. Shuler, North Carolina Central University; George M. MacDonald, Grand Valley State College, and Edwin W. Lawrence, University of Alaska, Fairbanks.

Division III members are Rocco J. Carzo, Tufts University; Maureen T. Horan-Pease, Drew University; Milton E. Reece, Greensboro College, and John M. Schael, Washington University (Missouri).

Those who plan to nominate persons for any of the Council positions or the Division III vice-president's position should refer to Constitution 5-5-(c), which lists the Association's geographical regions for purposes of Council representation.

Court allows Stanford to join suit

A Superior Court judge in California has ruled to allow Stanford University to join a lawsuit challenging the legality of the NCAA's mandatory drug-testing program.

Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Conrad Rushing rendered his decision July 20 after 12 hours of oral arguments by attorneys for Stanford and the NCAA, the Associated Press reported.

Stanford argued it did not want to enforce an unlawful program and that it was caught in the cross-fire between students challenging the drug testing and the NCAA, which requires that the university enforce the program.

The judge denied the NCAA's request to dismiss the suit. Rushing also allowed Stanford football player Barry McKeever to join the suit, which was begun in January by Stanford diver Simone Levant.

"We're very pleased," said Robert Van Nest, attorney for the students. "We won on all the major issues."

On March 13, Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Peter Stone granted a preliminary restraining order permitting Levant, then captain of the Stanford women's diving team, to compete without submitting to drug testing.

Levant had claimed that the program was humiliating and degrading and invaded her right to privacy under the California constitution.

The NCAA had contended that student-athletes have no constitutional right to compete in NCAA events. If they choose to compete, they must conform to NCAA guidelines, including the drug-testing program.

Another student, Jennifer Hill, captain of the women's soccer team, joined the suit last spring.

McKeever, a 21-year-old line-backer, testified in papers filed in the case that he was forced to take a urine drug test in December 1986 before his team played in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Florida. He said he found the test "degrading, humiliating and deeply embarrassing."

Attorneys for the students challenging the program said they hope a hearing on the case can be held this fall.

Of the 180 presidents and chancellors who preregistered for the Convention, 147 actually attended. Included were 102 from Division I institutions, 29 from Division II members and 16 representing Division III. The Division I total included 49 from Division I-A, 31 from I-AA and 22 from I-AAA.

The record for CEO attendance at an NCAA Convention, annual or special, is 199 at the fifth special Convention in June 1985.

MIAA adds four members

The Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association announced July 15 that it will expand to 12 schools by adding four members of the Central States Intercollegiate Conference.

Conference representatives voted to add Missouri Southern, Missouri Western and Kansas colleges Pittsburg State and Washburn to the conference.

MIAA Commissioner Ken Jones said the four schools, associated with the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, have applied for membership in NCAA Division II, the level at which MIAA schools compete.

Pending acceptance by the NCAA, the new schools will become full league members and will be eligible for MIAA championships beginning with the 1989-90 academic year.

Jones said a format for conference competition and a possible name change for the league will be determined later.

Current members of the MIAA include Central Missouri State, Northwest Missouri State, Northeast Missouri State, Southeast Missouri State, Missouri-Rolla, Missouri-St. Louis, Lincoln and Southwest Baptist.

Eugene F. Corrigan

Corrigan named ACC commissioner

Eugene F. Corrigan, director of athletics at the University of Notre Dame, who also serves on the NCAA Council and the Division I Men's Basketball Committee, has been named commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, effective September 1. He replaces the late Robert C. James.

Corrigan, citing the conference's strong leadership in James, who died of cancer in May, and Jim Weaver in the late 1960s, said, "I'm just as thrilled as I can be to be in that line," he said. "I hope when I retire that my name will fit into that line."

Corrigan has been athletics director at Notre Dame since 1981. He has strong connections to the ACC, having served as athletics director at Virginia from 1971 to 1980.

The Duke graduate also coached basketball, soccer and lacrosse at Virginia between 1959 and 1967. He served as assistant ACC commissioner under Weaver from 1967 to 1969.

League adds sport

Men's soccer has been added to the roster of sports played in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference.

League members—including Division I power St. Louis and recent championship participant Evansville—will begin play with a post-season tournament in 1987-88. Regular-season competition is planned for the following year, along with a championship tournament.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q Are NCAA championships supposed to be limited to the best teams and individuals, or are they to reflect geographical balance?

A In accordance with Executive Regulation 1-2-(a), NCAA meets and tournaments are intended to provide national championship competition among the best eligible student-athletes and teams at the conclusion of the respective sports seasons, recognizing the regional structures approved for certain championships, and shall be conducted in accordance with the requirements of this regulation and other applicable legislation of the Association. The Executive Committee, at its May 4-5 meeting, reviewed this topic and agreed that the regulation appropriately incorporates "the best teams and individuals" but also provides for regional representation in order to encourage the development of certain sports. The philosophies of whether championships should be only for the best or should provide for regional representation are not a matter of "either/or."

Publicists are recognized at CoSIDA convention

One former and two current sports information directors—one who became the first woman SID at a major university—have been honored by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

Roger Valdiserri, associate athletics director and SID at the University of Notre Dame, has been presented the 1987 Arch Ward Award. It is given annually to a CoSIDA member who has made an outstanding contribution to the field of college sports information or who, by his or her activities outside the field, has brought dignity or prestige to the profession.

Abilene Christian University SID Garner Roberts was presented the Warren Berg Award, which is given to an athletics publicist from a college-division institution under the same guidelines as the Ward award.

Rosa Gatti, who became the first woman SID at a major university when she was named at Villanova University, received the Jake Wade Award. This annual honor is given by CoSIDA to an individual who has made an outstanding contribution in the communications media to the field of collegiate athletics. Gatti, who now is vice-president of communications for the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network (ESPN), is the first woman to win the award.

The three were recognized July 2 during the annual CoSIDA convention. Roberts, Kearney State College SID Don Briggs and Pete Nevins of East Stroudsburg University of Pennsylvania also were inducted into CoSIDA's hall of fame during the event. Following are biographical sketches of the winners.

Valdiserri

Valdiserri has served as SID and associate athletics director at Notre Dame, and his duties include a wide range of responsibilities. In addition to overseeing the public relations area, he also is involved in the school's radio and television negotiations. He works closely with athletics director Eugene F. Corrigan in scheduling football and basketball games.

Following his graduation from Notre Dame in 1954, Valdiserri served his first stint at his alma mater as administrative assistant to Irish football coach Terry Brennan. In 1959, he went to Mercedes-Benz of North America as public relations director and then moved to the Kansas City Chiefs professional football team as public relations director in 1964. Valdiserri returned to Notre Dame as SID in 1966, added the responsibilities of assistant athletics director in 1976 and later became an associate athletics director.

He recently was presented a special presidential award by Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, then president of the university, for outstanding contributions and service to the institution.

Since 1976, he has earned 43 awards from CoSIDA for his sports publications, many of the citations honoring his programs and press guides as best in the nation.

Valdiserri was elected to the CoSIDA Hall of Fame in 1981 and currently is that organization's president.

Roberts

In addition to serving as sports information director at Abilene Christian, Roberts is the news director for the Lone Star Conference. He received a bachelor's degree in mass communications from Abilene Christian in 1970.

Roberts worked with U.S. Olympic Sports Festivals in 1985 and 1986 and with NCAA, NAIA and NJCAA national events.

A past president of the NAIA Sports Information Directors Association, Roberts has received several publications awards from the NAIA and CoSIDA.

Prior to serving as SID at Abilene Christian, Roberts was director of the university's news bureau, and he was a publications editor for Hallmark Cards, Inc., Kansas City, Missouri.

Gatti

A 1972 graduate of Villanova with a bachelor's degree in French, Gatti joined ESPN in 1980 as director of communications and was named a vice-president of the network in 1981. She moved to ESPN from Brown University, where she had served as SID for four years. While there, she served as the publicity coordinator for several national championships and chaired a variety of national sports information committees.

Prior to her arrival at Brown, Gatti was employed at her alma mater, where she advanced rapidly. Starting as a secretary in the Villanova sports information office, she became assistant director within a year and shortly thereafter became SID.

In 1983, she became the first woman to receive Villanova's Arts and Science's Medallion, which is awarded to alumni for their professional achievements.

Midwest, and all members of the Southwestern Athletic Conference and the Midwestern Collegiate Conference will be placed in the Midwest. The new American South Conference also will be aligned with the Midwest.

Chicago State University; the University of Illinois, Chicago, and the University of Wisconsin, Green Bay, will be moved from the Midwest to the Midwest region. The University of Texas, El Paso, and the University of Texas, San Antonio, will be realigned from the Midwest to the West region.

The committee will recommend the following 18 conferences for automatic qualification to the 1988 championship: the Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic-10 Conference, Big East Conference, Big Eight Conference, Big Ten Conference, Colonial Athletic Association, Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, High Country Athletic Conference, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Mid-American Conference, Mountain West Athletic Conference, Ohio Valley Conference, Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Pacific-10 Conference, Southeastern Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference and Sun Belt Conference. The number of automatic qualifiers will remain the same if the tournament field is expanded.

The American South Conference's request for a waiver of the two-year waiting period for automatic qualification was denied. A request from the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) for an automatic berth for the winner of a postseason tournament among the top two teams in the East Coast Conference, Seaboard Conference, Ivy Group and ECAC-Metro also was denied.

The committee approved an addition to the seeding section of the championship handbook in order to clarify the seeding process. The statements read: "The committee will seed the top eight teams on a national basis in two tiers of four teams each. Each team in the first tier will be a top seed in one of the four geographical regions; teams in the second tier will be placed in the regional brackets to achieve competitive balance and, when possible, to preserve geographical identity."

The committee will recommend sites for the 1989 regional tournaments. They are: East—Western Kentucky University; Midwest—Auburn University; Midwest—Louisiana Tech University, and West—University of Texas, Austin.

The committee also will recommend that effective with the 1990 site-selection process, preference be given to institutions and/or sponsoring agencies whose proposed budgets guarantee a minimum of $30,000 as 75 percent of their estimated net receipts.

The committee supported a request from the Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) for $7,500 to conduct a seminar at its 1988 convention. The committee recommends that the seminar include in-service education for coaches concerning nutrition, drug abuse, stress management, pregnancy among student-athletes and related topics.

The committee also supported a request from the WBCA for $10,500 for professional development of part-time graduate assistants and assistant coaches.

The committee's recommendations will be considered by the Division I Championships and Executive Committees at their August 9-11 meetings.

Official soccer ball is selected

The NCAA Men's and Women's Soccer Committees recently announced the ball chosen for use during 1987 championship play.

The Adidas Mexico Azteca soccer ball will be used in all NCAA tournament games. These balls will be sent by the NCAA national office to the tournament manager at the host institution for each round of competition.

Division II seeks third-place tournament game

The Division II Men's Basketball Committee has voted to recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that a third-place game be added to the Division II Men's Basketball Championship.

The Division II Men's Basketball Committee met on Cape Cod in Massachusetts July 5-8.

The 1988 championship will be March 25-26 in Springfield, Massachusetts. The committee set tentative game times of 6:05 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. Friday and 5:35 p.m. and 8:05 p.m. Saturday. The third-place game will precede the championship game Saturday.

The committee also acted to recommend the following 13 conferences for automatic qualification into the 1988 play-offs: the California Collegiate Athletic Association, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Great Lakes Valley Conference, Great Northwest Conference, Gulf South Conference, Midwest Collegiate Conference, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northeast-Ten Conference, Northern California Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and Sunshine State Conference. Other conferences are still under consideration.

The committee also will recommend that Eastern New Mexico University be realigned from the West region to the South Central region.

In 1988, the first weekly Division II men's basketball poll will be issued January 5. The first selections for the championship will be made February 23. The final regular-season poll will be March 1, and final selections for the championship will be March 6. The final poll will be March 8.

The committee voted to recommend that the certification-of-eligibility form for championships competition be eliminated because student-athletes competing during the regular season must satisfy eligibility criteria at least as stringent as those in Bylaw 5.

When considering the question of drug testing of officials, the committee showed a preference for the testing of student-athletes rather than officials. There was no drug testing at the Division II championship in 1987. If drug testing for officials is required, the committee prefers testing of the referee only.

The committee is reviewing implementation of three-man officiating crews for all championship competition. In January, the committee will review a form for rating officials.

Bigger play-offs sought

An increase in bracket sizes for the Divisions I, II and III championships will be among the recommendations the NCAA Women's Softball Committee will submit to the Association's Executive Committee for approval.

Meeting July 14-17 at Tahoe, California, the softball committee voted to recommend increasing the Division I bracket from 16 to 20 teams and granting automatic qualification to the Big Eight Conference, the Big Ten Conference, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association and the Pacific-10 Conference.

Division I regionals will be held March 20-21. The University of California, Berkeley, will host the May 25-29 championship.

The Division II subcommittee seeks to expand its championship bracket from 12 to 16 teams, allowing four teams to compete at each of four regional sites. Automatic qualification has been recommended for the California Collegiate Athletic Association, the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, the New England Collegiate Conference and the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference.

California State University, Sacramento, will be recommended to host the 1988 Division II championship May 13-15. Regionals will be May 7-8.

Division III has requested that its postseason bracket be increased from 16 to 18 teams with no conferences receiving automatic qualification. Regionals will be held May 13-14, and the championship will be May 20-23 at a site to be determined.

Also, the committee approved the Dudley SB12LND softball for tournament play in all divisions.

In other action, the committee requested that the Division I finals be permitted to retain the title of College Softball World Series. The Executive Committee recently restricted use of the College World Series title to the Division I Men's Baseball Championship.

Summer leagues approved

An additional 20 summer basketball leagues have been approved for student-athlete participation, bringing the total to 292 that have been certified by the NCAA Council. Lists of other approved summer leagues appeared in the May 20, May 27, June 24 and July 8 issues of The NCAA News.

Any questions concerning the application process or the requirements for NCAA approval of summer basketball leagues should be referred to John R. Gerdy, legislative assistant, at the NCAA national office. Following are the 12 men's and eight women's leagues recently approved for participation. Additional leagues will be reported in The NCAA News as they are approved.

New study of athletes' drug abuse sought

The NCAA Research Committee has given tentative approval to a national study of substance-abuse habits among student-athletes.

Meeting in Kansas City July 9-10, the committee recommended funding for the project, a replication of an earlier study on the subject. It is hoped that the research will help to analyze the impact of the Association's drug-testing program.

All of the committee's recommendations for new research projects are subject to approval by the Executive Committee.

Other studies receiving preliminary approval were an analysis of the psychological variables related to the career development of athletes and a historical perspective on eligibility rules in intercollegiate athletics.

In a related matter, the committee expressed its satisfaction with the progress of a current research project examining freshman eligibility. A request for additional funding will be referred to the Executive Committee.

The Research Committee also discussed the recent survey on partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers under Bylaw 5-1-(j) and recommended that the study be repeated for the next four years.

In other business, the committee addressed the topic of publishing rights for studies funded by the NCAA, seeking a distinction between unsolicited proposals and those contracted for by the committee. While acknowledging that summarizing results in The NCAA News might devalue the publication of full studies in other periodicals, the committee would seek such rights for work it commissions. The matter will be referred to the Association's legal counsel.

Fee increase, realignment recommended

Actions involving officials fees, regional realignment and automatic qualification highlighted the Division III Women's Basketball Committee meeting June 22-25 in South Lake Tahoe, California.

The committee voted to recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that fees for officials working the Division III Women's Basketball Championship be increased. The fee for working a regional game would increase from $80 to $100, the fee for a quarterfinal game would be raised from $100 to $125, and the fee for the semifinals and championship would increase from $120 to $150. The committee also is recommending that the fee for the alternate official increase from $25 to $30.

The committee also recommends that Catholic University and Galaudet University be moved from the South to the Atlantic region.

The committee is recommending the following eight conferences for automatic qualification: College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin, Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference, Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference, Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, New Jersey State Athletic Conference and Ohio Athletic Conference. The selection call will be Sunday, February 28, 1988.

Cardinal

Other continuing championships winning streaks include those held by Augustana (Illinois) in Division III football (four), Kenyon in Division III men's swimming (eight), Abilene Christian in Division II men's track (six), Cal State Stanislaus in Division III men's golf (four) and Cal Poly-SLO in Division II women's cross country (five). And, of course, some memorable championships winning streaks came to an end this year.

Among them were Iowa's reign in Division I wrestling and Utah's claim to the Division I women's gymnastics crown. The Hawkeyes' string of nine straight victories in team competition was unraveled by intrastate rival Iowa State, while the Utes' five-year hold on the championship was broken by Georgia.

Other streaks that were ended included Arkansas' three-year reign in Division I men's outdoor track (by UCLA) and Southern Illinois-Edwardsville's three-year hold on Division II wrestling (by Cal State Bakersfield).

Another noteworthy accomplishment involved the four institutions whose men's and women's teams won NCAA championships in the same sport during the same season. The group includes St. Thomas (Minnesota), whose men's and women's runners captured Division III cross country titles; Kenyon, whose men's and women's swimming teams won Division III championships; St. Augustine's indoor track teams, which captured the Division II men's and women's team crowns, and Abilene Christian's outdoor track teams, winners of the men's and women's Division II titles.

In all, 58 institutions accounted for the 76 Association team championships contested in three divisions. The breakdown by divisions is as follows: Division I—24 schools won 33 titles; Division II—15 schools won 19 titles, and Division III—19 schools won 24 titles.

Fourteen institutions fielded more than one championship-winning team—six in Division I, four in Division II and four in Division III. As mentioned earlier, Stanford's four titles were tops among the multichampionship winners. Division I member UCLA and Division III member Trenton State each won three team championships, and the other 11 schools had two winners each.

They include: Division I—Arkansas, Georgia, Texas and Louisiana State; Division II—Cal State Bakersfield, Cal State Northridge, Abilene Christian and St. Augustine's, and Division III—St. Thomas (Minnesota), Kenyon and UC San Diego.

Other championships notes—In Division II, Cal State Northridge has taken over the lead in combined (men's and women's) team titles on the basis of championships in women's swimming and softball. Matador teams now own 27 NCAA Division II titles, to Cal Poly-SLO's 26...Trenton State has the combined Division III lead with 13...Southern Cal holds a large edge over UCLA in combined Division I titles with 69, to the Bruins' 56...Seven institutions got their first NCAA team championships in any sport during 1986-87. They include: Division I—Duke (men's soccer); Division II—Edinboro (men's cross country), and Division III—Plattsburgh State (ice hockey), Salisbury State (field hockey), Rochester (women's soccer), Wisconsin-Stevens Point (women's basketball) and Christopher Newport (women's outdoor track).

(b) That Michigan State University receive three percent of the net receipts for serving as host institution for the 1987 Division I finals, per Executive Regulation 1-9-(c)-(4).

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

1. Reviewed the application of Bylaw 5-1-(k)-(5) and determined that a foreign student-athlete may be permitted to receive a waiver of the residence requirement per Bylaw 5-1-(m) if such a waiver applies.

2. Reviewed the application of Bylaw 3-3-(j), which provides that each academic year in the sport of basketball, a member institution shall exempt from counting toward the maximum number of contests not more than one contest or tournament (not to exceed four contests) in not more than one of the situations set forth in Bylaws 3-3-(h) and (i), excluding the contest against a foreign team in the United States, and shall not participate in a foreign tour in basketball in any academic year (or the summer immediately thereafter) in which it utilizes such an exemption; agreed that if a member institution participates against a foreign team in the United States, the institution is prohibited from exempting any other opponent or event listed in Bylaw 3-2-(h) [i.e., a "club member" of the Amateur Basketball Association of the United States of America; the Basketball Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic, or, for Division II members only, against a foreign team in Canada], but may utilize any one of the other exemptions as listed in Bylaws 3-2-(i) and 3-3-(h), or participate in a foreign tour.

3. Reviewed the application of Constitution 3-6-(g) and determined that a staff member of an athletics department of a member institution is precluded from representing any individual (e.g., a graduated student-athlete) in the marketing of athletic ability to a professional team or professional sports organization; recommended to the Council that Constitution 3-6-(g) be amended accordingly.

4. Reviewed the application of Bylaw 1-7 to a situation in which an individual is selected to be a graduate assistant coach for the next academic year but has yet to serve in any capacity on the institution's staff, and determined that the provisions of Bylaw 1-7 would apply only if the graduate assistant begins performing coaching responsibilities or receiving compensation from the athletics department prior to participation in a summer camp or clinic.

5. Reviewed the application of Bylaw 1-3 (evaluation period) in regard to the permissibility of a member institution's basketball coach attending and observing prospective student-athletes participating in the Pan American Games and concluded that the provisions of Bylaw 1-3 were not intended to preclude member institutions' coaching-staff members from attending this type of international athletics competition; agreed that this interpretation should be limited to coaches' attendance at the Olympic, Pan American and World University Games; also determined that photographs or images of enrolled student-athletes may be placed on posters, postcards, film, stills or videotapes designed to promote the Pan American Games or the athletics arena housing that event; concluded that Constitution 3-1-(e) and Case No. 45 would prohibit a corporate sponsor (other than through the reproduction of the sponsoring company's regular trademark or logo on the item) from selling or distributing, at no charge, any promotional item from the Pan American Games that utilizes the name or picture of an

Conference No. 11
June 18, 1987

enrolled student-athlete.

6. Reviewed the application of Bylaw 6-1-(b)-(2)-(v), permitting disabled veterans to receive state government awards, and approved a state government award that is provided to children of disabled veterans who served in the Vietnam War.

7. Determined that the provisions of Case No. 45, indicating that a commercial company or service may not be associated with the sale of a picture, poster or calendar that depicts an enrolled student-athlete with eligibility remaining (other than through the reproduction of the sponsoring company's regular trademark or logo on the item), restrict the sponsor's identification appearing on such an item to information normally included in the sponsor's logo (i.e., the company's emblem, name, address, telephone number); confirmed that no personal names, messages or slogans could be included in the logo under such circumstances.

8. Reviewed the application of Bylaw 3-6-(b) and its subparagraphs, which outline criteria that must be followed by a member institution in order for the Council to sanction an institutional foreign tour (thus exempting from the normal limitations on number of contests all games played on the tour) and determined that a member institution may remain in a foreign country following completion of a sanctioned tour to participate (within the permissible playing season) in additional contests against American teams, subject to the understanding that such contests are countable and the provisions of Bylaw 3-6-(c) are met.

9. (Divisions I and II) Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 1-2-(b) and 7-1-(e), restricting off-campus recruiting contacts by athletics representatives, and determined that these provisions would preclude an athletics representative from serving as the pilot of an airplane used to fly a prospective student-athlete to the institution's campus for an official visit; referred to the Special NCAA Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process the issue of whether the provisions of Bylaw 1-9-(d)-(3) should be considered to permit only the use of a commercial airplane or chartered aircraft to transport a prospect, thereby prohibiting a Division I or II institution from using an aircraft owned solely by an individual representative of a member institution's athletics interests to transport a prospective student-athlete.

10. (Divisions I and II) Reviewed Bylaw 3-3-(k)-(3), permitting the participation of an individual student-athlete in local celebrity sports activities conducted for the purpose of raising funds for a charitable organization (as long as no more than two student-athletes from any one sport are participating in such activities, and the students do not miss class as a result of their participation), and agreed that the provisions of Bylaw 3-3-(k)-(3) apply to the participation of student-athletes in fund-raising sports activities for charitable organizations held during the summer months, as well as those events conducted during the academic year.

11. (Division I) Reviewed the application of a previous Council interpretation regarding the core-curriculum requirement of Bylaw 5-1-(j), which stipulates that a one-year course that is spread over two years (e.g., elementary algebra) shall be considered as one course, and considered a situation in which a high school awards two units of credit for such a course; concluded that if the high school does not offer the two-year course on an accelerated track (i.e., if there

Ex-athletes, now in Congress, to speak at NCAA seminar

Two outstanding former athletes now serving in the U. S. Congress have been chosen as the keynote speakers at the NCAA Professional Development Seminar in August.

Jim Bunning, R-Kentucky, will speak at the luncheon Thursday, August 6; Tom McMillen, D-Maryland, will speak at the luncheon the following day.

The annual seminar, which is devoted to marketing in collegiate athletics, will be held August 5-7 at the Hyatt Regency Crystal City near Washington, D.C.

Bunning, during an outstanding baseball career, became the first pitcher since Cy Young to strike out 1,000 batters in both the American and National Leagues.

Bunning has served as a national committeeman on the Republican National Committee since 1983.

McMillen was selected as a Rhodes Scholar after earning three-time all-America honors at the University of Maryland, College Park. He was a member of the silver-medal-winning U.S. Olympic basketball team in 1972.

McMillen played for the Braves, the New York Knicks, the Atlanta Hawks and the Washington Bullets before retiring in 1986. He was elected to Congress last November.

The NCAA Professional Development Seminar has drawn another group of nationally respected professionals to lead panels during the three-day meeting. Topics include fund-raising, event promotions, creating better visibility for women's sports, licensing, season ticket sales, promotions on a smaller budget, and how to get more exposure at the Divisions II and III levels.

Elizabeth Murphey, assistant director of athletics at the University of Georgia, and Mary Jo Haverback, women's sports information director at Pennsylvania State University, will lead the panel on women's sports visibility. Donna A. Lopiano, director of women's athletics at the University of Texas, Austin, and Todd Turner, director of athletics at the University of Connecticut, will lead the panel on season ticket sales.

The advance registration fee of $185 for NCAA members includes the seminar workbook and all materials, two continental breakfasts, two luncheons, and two receptions.

The room rate at the Hyatt is $75 per night for single or double occupancy. The Hyatt's telephone number is 703/486-1234. Special discount airline rates are available through American Airlines; details are available through Fugazy International Travel (800/243-1800). For more information, contact James A. Marchiony at the NCAA national office or Beverly Reynolds at Host Communications (606/253-3230).

CORRECTIONS

Due to an editor's error, a report on the recent special Convention that appeared in the July 8 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly stated the limit adopted by Division III for playing and practice seasons. The limit is 21 weeks.

Due to an editor's error, the results of the 1987 Division I Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships that appeared in the June 10 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly reported that shot put champion Regina Cavanaugh of Rice set a meet record in the event. The record of 17.54 (57-6½) is held by Cavanaugh but was set during preliminary competition at the 1986 championships in Indianapolis.
